

Let Go

Thank You, that freedom begins right now. I thank You, that You minister to every open heart in this place and to the people that are watching. It is necessary for your future, to let go. It is necessary for your future, for you to grow, that you let go the things of the past, the patterns that you are used to, the expectancies that you have. The self-fulfilling prophecy, where you say: "I already know, what they will do. They are always like that.", but the Lord would say: "Not any more, because you are changing now."

You do not only get new glasses, that you see through, but something changes much deeper, which is in your heart. You will see in a different light. And many, many things, that you thought, are part of your life, they will depart. Forever and ever and ever. It's necessary for you to run; not just go, not just walk and not just flow with the flow within the body, with the flow within this time. For you it's time to run. It's time to run. It's time to run. It is your time and you are free.
